FRIEDERICH EBERTS GERMAN PRESIDENT

(By Associated Press)
WEIMAR, (Tuesday), Feb. 11.—Peeling church bells announced to the people of Weimar that the German folk for the first time in history had chosen the head of their own state. Friedrich Eberts, former saddler and Socialist leader, appeared before the theatre later and received, as president of Germany, these plaudits which formerly marked the appearance of the monarch who once symbolized the party to which Ebert belongs as being composed of men unworthy to bear the name German. The gallery of the theatre, in which the national assembly sat for the first time in history, resembled the roasting spit in the old days, with men and women in gala attire jammed in every inch of space.

Armistice conditions and the blockade were denounced as today's meeting. A message from the Weimarian legislature protesting against

An effort will be made at a meeting today of the Oakland boilermakers to get the strikers to return in order that they might be in a position to secure immediate government mediation for their demands. The Oakland telephone operators' union has planned to meet and consider demands on their employers.

HUNS TOO CAUTIOUS OPENING HOSTILITIES IN THE NORTH SEA

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Feb. 12.—A book by Admiral Jellicoe, former commander of the British grand fleet, published today, describes the dangers to which the fleet was exposed due to the German use of submarines, mines and torpedoes during the first two years of the war when the grand fleet was short of cruisers and destroyers and with defenseless bases. He said that neither in October, 1914, nor May, 1916, did the British margin of superiority justify him in disregarding the enemy's torpedo fire. He said the situation gradually improved after 1916, especially after the battle of Jutland. Regarding 1918 he said:

"We could have afforded to take risks which in 1916 would have been unwise. If the German fleet had come out to battle a terrible punishment awaited them."
